The Care Quality Commission is the regulator for independent Healthcare. The Care Quality Commission has no statutory powers to investigate any complaints that patients or other members of the public make about independent healthcare services, nor do they have a regulatory role to manage, arbitrate or resolve their complaints, concerns or allegations. However, they will take account of all information that they receive from the public about registered independent providers, or about unregistered providers that they consider should be registered. They assess whether this 'concerning information' suggests that:

- An offence has been committed as set out in the Health & Social Care Act 2008
- A regulation has been breached as set out in the associated regulations, or
- The provider has contravened a condition of their registration with us, as set out in their registration certificate.

If they suspect that the provider has committed an offence under the Act or a breach under the regulations, they are required to take action to bring about improvement.
